$300 Gift For Fire Truck

The Pamplin Fire Truck has just been given some much needed GA$ to climb higher up the Campaign Hill, says Weldon Covington (right), pres. of the Pamplin Volunteer Fire Dept. Mrs. Shirley A. Richardson (left), manager of the First National Bank of Pamplin, has a $300 check in her hand – and promptly presented it – to add to the $6,500 already raised toward a new fire truck for Pamplin. The Rural Door-to-Door campaign is still continuing each evening from 7 to 9 p.m. and Pamplin firemen and their helpers hope to reach every home in the area so that everyone may have the opportunity to help. Weldon Covington says that fire trucks do cost quite a bit and the firemen appreciate all those drops, ounces and gallons of GA$. SO --Dogive a dime, a Doolar or FIFTY GREENBACKS! Every bit of it adds up to a much-needed piece of fire-fighting equipment and the possible saving of homes, businesses and lives in the event of a fire or other disaster.

Forest Fire Danger High, Numbers Low

The forest fire danger this year has been high but the number of escaped fires is less, Virginia Division of Forestry Foresters say. In noting the fire losses in the Farmville District, Assistant District Forester, Forest Fire Control, Maynard Stoddard, says that during the most dangerous periods, the fire losses were less than last year. This is in spite of very hazzardous winds and dry conditions during March and April. The Southside Virginia District of ten (10) counties has experienced 155 escaped fires this year while 204 fires burned during the same period last year. Fires burned 302 acres of forestland in 1971 while 508 acres were consumed last year.

Some areas of Virginia had large disastrous fires this spring on the dry, windy days Stoddard noted but the Southside District's largest fire burned 60 acres in Buckingham County. The average fire burned less than two acres this year while nearly 2 1/2 acres last year. Losses were kept low by an unprecendented carefulness from the public, Forestry Officials believe. Quick response from Fire Departments and Volunteers to assist Division of Forestry Fire Fighters kept the timber loss low.

Amelia County has had 11 fires burning 8 acres, this year; Appomattox County 4 fires and 3 acres; Buckingham County 18 fires and 119 acres; Charlotte County 13 fires burning 26 acres; Cumberland 9 fires and 9 acres; Halifax 30 fires and 25 acres; Lunenburg County 16 fires and 20 acres; Mecklenburg County 24 fires and 49 acres; Nottoway County 18 fires and 26 acres; and Prince Edward County 12 fires burning 17 acres.

Long-Lost Ring Is Found

Mary Martin Ferguson (Mrs. J. R,) (above) of Appomattox lost her Appomattox High School ring in Holliday Lake 27 years ago. It was found by Paul Ford of Appomattox not too long ago and returned to Mrs. Ferguson through a friend who noticed the initials MFM in the ring and remembered that Mrs. Ferguson had lost the ring while the two friends were on a double date together in 1944. Now Mrs. Ferguson will wear it once again, but her granddaughter, Shawn Harvey (above) is happy to show everybody that rings are for everyone. Shawn's mother, Mrs. J. R. Harvey (Dolly) can now wear the Appomattox High School ring which she purchased for Mrs. Ferguson to replace the one thought to be lost forever. Only thing missing from a happy ending to a great little story is a photo of the other grandchild, J. R. Jr. (But that will have to wait for another day!)
